

GROCERS OF COUNTY MEET IN DALY CITY

The regular monthly meeting of the San Mateo County Retail Grocers' Association was held last Tuesday evening in Eagles' Hall, Daly City, with an attendance that was gratifying to the leaders in the work of this association.

Trustee A. Bodien welcomed the grocers, in place of Mayor H. H. Smith, whose health prevented him from being in attendance.

The Association now has over fifty members, leading grocers of San Mateo county, who are co-operating with the Association in every way. A number of matters of interest to the members of the Association were before the meeting Tuesday night.

Entertainment was furnished by the Glee Club of the California State Grocers' Association, accompanied by Mrs. H. Cohen, Mr. Kaiser and daughter, Miss Gertrude Kaiser, rendered a duet, which was warmly applauded.

At the conclusion of the business meeting and the program, a banquet was served, at which Trustee Bodien was the principal speaker. Among the contributors to the success of the banquet were the Homestead Baking Company, M. J. Barnenstein, Milwaukee Brewery, and the makers of Gebhardt's tamales and Tuttle's cheese.

SHAW'S GREATEST PLAY TO BE REVIEWED AT CHURCH

"Saint Joan," George Bernard Shaw's, greatest play, will be reviewed, and parts of it read, on Sunday evening, March 21, at 7:30, at the Daly City Methodist church.

Shaw is the greatest living play writer and this is his best work. Mr. McClintic will make some brief introductory remarks upon the play, but will give the larger part of his time to a reading of the more important scenes.

"The Conditions of Effective Prayer" was the subject of the sermon last Sunday evening. Mr. McClintic spoke of discipline, perseverance and a childlike spirit of humility, penitence, and sincerity as essential conditions to effective praying.

The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Leonard McKee, led the congregation in the singing. Already the choir is preparing for Easter, which will be a great occasion.

On March 26, Friday evening, at 7:30, there will be a community social at the church, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid. There will be a program and light refreshments.

Plans are being made for an Easter sunrise meeting at 7 a. m. on Easter morning, April 4.

DE MOLAY CHAPTER TO BE INSTITUTED

It is announced that arrangements have been perfected and that Crocker Chapter Order of De Molay will be instituted on Saturday evening, April 3, at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremonies will take place at the Jefferson Union high school auditorium.

At the conclusion of the institution ceremonies addresses will be made by prominent Masons, and refreshments will be served.

This organization is composed of young men between the age of 16 and 21.

George E. Archer is chairman of the committee having the matter in charge, and will be glad to furnish any further information to any one interested.

COLMA MAN DIES FROM OLD WOUND

Agostini Ballesterasse was found dead in Colma last Monday. The case was taken charge of by Deputy Coroner Luella D. Pepper and Constable S. A. Landini. The remains were removed to the parlors of W. C. Lasswell & Co., funeral directors.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., funeral directors. Interment was in the Italian cemetery.

Death was due to a hemorrhage of the lungs caused by a knife wound received nine years ago, it is said.

CELEBRATES NINTH BIRTHDAY

Stanley Parminter celebrated his ninth birthday last Wednesday evening at the Parminter home on Hillcrest Drive. Those present were: Muriel Sherwood, Ellen Riddell, Helen Denk, Doris DeVincenti, William Shuer, Louis Miller, Arthur Thomas, Johnny Denk, Vernon Rehaume, Roy DeVincenti, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Rampe, Mrs. DeVincenti, Mrs. Greeburg, Mrs. Gasperini, Mrs. Parminter.

FAMOUS PASSION PLAY TO BE SUBJECT OF LECTURE

The annual congregational dinner of Grace Presbyterian church will be held Friday evening, March 26, at 6:30, in the church hall, and all friends and attendants of the church, with their families, are cordially invited to attend. After the dinner the congregational business meeting of the year will be held. Plans are being made for excellent music and a general good time at this meeting.

On Sunday evening, March 28, the pastor will give a sermon lecture on the world famed Passion play of Oberammergau, Germany, where over 400 persons are in the cast depicting the life of Jesus from the entrance into Jerusalem until His ascension. Mr. Gatchell witnessed this greatest of all plays in 1922 and will give a vivid description as he saw it and the impression it made. The lecture will be free.

Sunday evening, March 21, the theme for the evening address will be, "I Don't Like the Preacher." Excellent music on a profitable evening is assured to all who attend.

Thirteen girls came to the Girls' Club with Mrs. Gatchell on Tuesday afternoon, and the regular business meeting was held, after which a game of volley ball was played by the girls.

Ten boys came to meet Mr. Gatchell on Monday evening, and after a very spirited game of volley ball and some routine business, all went for a hike over the hill and a general good time was had by the boys, and all came back tired and happy.

A general survey of the district is being made by the ladies of the Guild and the pastor and his wife, and by so doing they are hoping to get in touch with the many new families who are moving into this growing and prosperous community.

The church should be the center of all social, educational and religious activities, and we invite parents and friends to help to build so that your children may point with pride to the church of their fathers.

Special music by the orchestra and congregation is prepared for the evening service beginning at 7:30 and lasting one hour.

TWO ON HONOR ROLL AT JEFFERSON UNION

Anna Tromberg and William Butow were the only students on the Honor Roll last Monday when the students at Jefferson Union high school received their report cards.

The twenty-seven students that received College Recommendations were Helen Anderson, Albert Belli, George Baker, Joe Camenzind, Edward Devincenzi, George Gnaul, Jessie Hart, Eva Johnson, Josephine Jensen, Lawrence Kennedy, Gerda Kock, Geraldine Lagomarsino, Isabelle MacDonald, Fred Millhauser, Roberta Murray, Elizabeth Newell, Marie Pope, Adell Price, Frieda Price, Viola Rehaume, Elizabeth Saame, Edna Smith, Evelyn Smith, Francis Stark, Mildred Swan, William Sweeney, Martha Worst.

CELEBRATES SMASHING OF COLMA "BOTTLENECK"

Thursday at noon the Down Town Association of San Francisco celebrated the breaking of the Colma "bottleneck" with a special luncheon at which Harvey M. Toy, chairman of the State Highway Commission, acted as chairman. Talks were limited to five minutes and the speakers included Mayor Rolph, John H. Skeggs, engineer of state roads, Samuel Kahn, executive vice-president of the Market Street Railways; Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey of San Mateo county; Supervisors Richard J. Welch and Richard Harrelson of San Francisco, and Attorney Sylvester J. McAttee, attorney for the Down Town Association.

Run Down By Automobile

Leonard McKee, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. McKee, of Evergreen avenue, is suffering from a broken arm received last week when run over by a machine in front of his home. He is recovering in St. Luke's hospital.

ST. MAXIMUS CHURCH FORMALLY DEDICATED

On last Sunday, March 14, 1926, St. Maximus church, the beautiful place of worship for the rapidly growing population of this city, was dedicated with great solemnity. His Grace Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, assisted by numerous priests of the diocese, performed the ceremony.

A company of fourth degree members of the Knights of Columbus, richly dressed and armed with swords, was present to receive the Archbishop and act as his guard of honor. They presented a fine appearance and added much to the impressiveness of the occasion. All the members of the Holy Name Society and of the Altar Society of the parish, wearing his or her badge, were in evidence in their respective organizations. Besides, all the other members of the congregation had gathered to witness the unusual ceremonies.

On the grounds adjacent to the church an excellent band from the city contributed choice music for the pleasure of all.

Father James Donohoe, the pastor of the parish, was master of ceremonies and he attended to the numerous details with wonderful success.

Father Charles J. Bertola, who did so much to build the church, was accorded the honor of celebrating the high mass that accompanied the dedication.

Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, after blessing and dedicating every part of the new edifice in his graceful and dignified manner, delivered a most eloquent address to the great audience, all of whom gave spellbound attention.

In the course of speaking he complimented Father Bertola for his success in building such a beautiful church when the prospects were far from inviting; Father Donohoe, the parish priest, for the energetic and successful way in which he has carried on the good work since he has been at the head of affairs; and the people, generally, who have made so many noble sacrifices in order that such an enterprise for the honor and glory of God might be accomplished.

Continuing, he said that now, more than ever before, it was a necessity for the salvation of the people and the perpetuation of their government to turn to religion in order that the unprecedented prosperity of this country might not cause them to lose their heads in the vanity of indulgence; that God had given us golden opportunities in order that we might do the greatest amount of good by refraining from selfishness in our endeavors, and that without Him no lasting good could be accomplished.

Above all other things he said that religious education of the children should be borne in mind constantly, in order that each child might be saved from straying into pathways that lead to harm and distress.

After the completion of the ceremonies, the Archbishop, the priests, and the great congregation of the people mingled together upon the spacious grounds, in the delightful air of the warm spring day, congratulating and conversing, like all of a big family.

His Grace was decidedly gracious in all respects, and especially so to the photographers, posing to please them, until they were contented.

The next building, which is already provided for financially, will be a palatial parochial house.

The receipts for the day of dedication were close to $500. Father Donohoe and his congregation deserve congratulation.

MAN WHO DEEDED HOME CLAIMS HE WAS DEFRAUDED

Claiming that he had been defrauded, Andrew J. Gisner, of Daly City, has filed suit in the Superior Court at Redwood City to obtain cancellation of a deed to his home given February 3, 1926, to Jacob Barman. Gisner claims, according to the complaint, that he sold the house and garage to Barman for $3,300, obtaining $300 in cash and a note for $3,000. The note was secured by a trust deed covering property in Shasta county, which Gisner claims, Barman told him was worth $10,000. Gisner says he now discovers that the Shasta county property is worth only $1,000.

Celebrate Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Selmi, of Daly City, celebrated their second wedding anniversary last Saturday evening by giving an informal party. Those who enjoyed the evening were Mr. and Mrs. E. Lopez, Philip Deller, Jr., and James Casey, of Colma; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Schram, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Selmi, Mr. and Mrs. G. Selmi, of Daly City; and Mr. and Mrs. W. Landucci, Mrs. Dolie Pfihl, Richard Pffihl and Miss Margaret McDonald, of San Francisco. Mrs. Selmi was also surprised by many lovely gifts.

MASONS PREPARING FOR 'SCHOOL WEEK'

The seventh annual "public schools week," sponsored by the Masonic Grand Lodge, will be observed in California from April 26 to May 1, Albert E. Boynton, Grand Master of the Lodge's California jurisdiction, announced Tuesday.

Originally instituted to urge relief for conditions due to shortage of teachers during and after the war period, the observance aroused keen public interest. First held in lodge rooms, meetings were made public last year. According to Mr. Boynton, this year's meetings will be open to the public, with parents of school children especially invited.

The committee to direct activities of the week throughout the state, as announced by Mr. Boynton, is comprised of Charles Albert, chairman; Vaughan McCaughey, secretary; Arthur Chamberlain, Wesley W. Kergan, Elias Ellison, all of San Francisco; Robert A. O'Dell, Vierling Kersey, Harry S. Lasker, Lee T. Mullen, all of Los Angeles; Arthur M. Brown Pasadena; Fred M. Hunter, Oakland; and Roy Cloud, Redwood City.

Local committees to have charge of the week in various communities are being selected.

CLAIMS TAX RULE IS DISCRIMINATORY

The right of the Treasury Department to discriminate against California in its community property law has been questioned by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce in a protest to Secretary Andrew W. Mellon.

Mellon has been asked to explain the recent ruling of the department that it will accept divided returns from husband and wife in all community property states except California.

The Chamber of Commerce asserts that the ruling is completely out of line with the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Robbins case.

It voices the belief that California taxpayers are entitled to the same treatment in connection with community income taxes as those in the seven other community property states.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND VOTERS REGISTERED

With registration closed for city elections to be held throughout San Mateo county on April 12, figures available at the office of County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese showed that only about 16,000 persons in the county will be entitled to vote.

The most unusual showing is made by Redwood City, which has a registration of 2,140, which exceeds the figure for 1924 by about 60. Registration in Burlingame is 2,714, which falls several hundred below the figure for 1924.

ART EXHIBIT TO BE HELD AT JEFFERSON UNION HIGH

Recognizing the educational advantages to be derived from opportunities to become acquainted with good art, Jefferson Union high school has arranged with the Elson Art Co., Inc., of Belmont, Massachusetts, for an art exhibition of two hundred pictures to be held March 24, 25 and 26 in the school library.

This collection consists of carbon photographs, photogravures and prints in full colors, made directly from the original masterpieces, and selected by art experts.

An admission of 10 cents will be charged to see this exhibit, the money to go towards the buying of pictures for the walls of the school.

These pictures will be of interest to both young and old, and the exhibit will be attractive and instructive.

BUSINESS EXHIBIT ATTENDED BY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Students of shorthand, bookkeeping and commercial history of Jefferson Union high school attended the National Business Show last Monday with Mr. D. J. Mork, commercial teacher.

Mr. Mork got the tickets for the students for Monday, as that was the day all students were given tickets from the business show. The pupils who went received a half day off, arriving at the Civic Auditorium at 1 o'clock.

Business houses of San Francisco had their office equipment on exhibition, and also men and women to demonstrate their machines. A typing contest was also given by George L. Hossfield, a champion typist.

BEGIN PREPARATIONS FOR DISTRICT SCHOOL EXHIBIT

A meeting of all the teachers and officials of the grammar schools of Jefferson district with the high school faculty was held Thursday afternoon of last week in Jefferson high. The meeting was held to discuss plans for the Jefferson district school exhibit to be held May 21. The high school exhibit will be placed in the various rooms and the grammar school displays in the auditorium.

It was decided to hold a short entertainment to be given by the First to Fourth grades on the afternoon of Friday, May 21. In the evening an entertainment will be given by the upper grades and high school pupils.

There will be an innovation this year in that prizes will be offered for the three best recitations by grammar school students, the finals to be held on the evening of May 21. The first prize will be donated by Professor W. J. Savage.

Miss E. Torello was elected chairman of the high school exhibit and entertainment, Miss M. Earle, general chairman of the grammar school exhibit committee, and Miss Traynor, chairman of the grammar school entertainment committee. Prizes for the best exhibits were discussed, but no conclusion reached.

PASSENGER INJURED WHEN PLANE FALLS

Thomas Kennon, a San Jose radio dealer suffered a fracture of the leg last Friday afternoon when the airplane in which he was riding as a passenger crashed while taking off from the Redwood City aviation field. The pilot, Louis Schute, was uninjured.

Kennon and Schute had flown from Santa Cruz to Redwood City and stopped over to talk to O. E. Sanders, manager of the field. As they took off, Schute attempted a down wind turn while the plane was only ten feet from the ground. A wing touched the ground, the plane turned turtle and the propeller and landing gear were broken.

PLAN TO BANISH PETS FROM STREETS

At the meeting of the Burlingame city trustees Monday night preliminary steps were taken to put a curb on the freedom of house pets in that city. A resolution was adopted, appointing a committee to draft an ordinance which will make it unlawful to permit dogs on Burlingame streets unless they are on leash.

The prevalence of stray dogs and cats has been the subject of discussion at previous meetings of the board and various methods of dealing with them has been suggested. Burlingame, however, has no pound and no poundmaster, and has not been in a position to enforce any laws designed to curb the freedom of its pets.

URGES FOOT PROBE TO AID SCHOOL PUPILS

Schools of California should give attention to children's feet as well as to their heads, chiropodists contend in asking state school authorities to arrange for a general foot inspection. Students with corns can't do the best work, the chiropodists claim. At their last convention a committee was appointed to take up the matter with the state school office.

Existing statutes permit treatment only by physicians, surgeons, dentists, optometrists and nurses, according to Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction. He said the law would have to be amended before foot inspection could be made.

TWO STUDENTS CHOSEN IN SHAKESPERIAN CONTEST

Francis Stark and Gifford Teel were declared the winners of the Shakespearian contest held in the high school auditorium last Friday. The winners received some stiff competition from Henry Suendermann and Edna Smith.

Francis and Gifford will go to the Greek Theatre in Berkeley, Saturday, March 27, and there will compete with representatives from other schools.

$800,000 ASKED FOR PALO ALTO HOSPITAL

Authorization of an appropriation of $800,000 for additional buildings for the Veterans' Bureau hospital at Palo Alto has been asked in a bill introduced in congress by Representative Lineberger. The measure would provide additional facilities for 325 patients suffering from nervous and mental disabilities, with separate wards for patients of this class.

AUTO FERRY WAR BREAKS OUT ANEW

The ferry war that has been brewing between the Southern Pacific and the Golden Gate Ferry Company ever since the latter applied for a franchise to Berkeley, broke out afresh Tuesday when the Southern Pacific moved to cut its San Francisco-Richmond ferry rate from $1 to 60 cents a car.

The State Railroad Commission immediately granted the reduction, which will go into effect April 16.

The Southern Pacific based its request for the lower rate on the contention that its own boats to Oakland, because of recent reductions, are cutting down the Richmond business 50 per cent. The application goes on to say that while the Southern Pacific is actually losing $5,000 a month on its Richmond auto ferry service at present prices, nevertheless it must suffer the reduction rather than lose all the business to its Oakland boats.

This reduction will be good news to those who have to cross the ferry and have been compelled to pay $1 for the carrying of their automobiles.

BUSINESS OF DAIRY SOLD FOR $500,000

The Dairy Delivery Company of San Francisco last Saturday completed the purchase of the business of the Millbrae Dairy Company of San Francisco. The deal involved a consideration of $500,000 and was one of the largest in the history of the dairy industry in California.

It is understood that the transaction will in no way affect the business of the Millbrae Dairy in San Mateo county and will leave the supply of the big dairy at Millbrae entirely for distribution in San Mateo county by the local Millbrae Dairy under the management of R. E. Longwell.

According to announcement at the Millbrae Dairy the sale of the San Francisco business is but one step in a program of improvement which will mean a great deal to San Mateo county. The statement was made that "the San Francisco office was calling for more milk than we could supply and continue to meet the growing demands of San Mateo county. Hereafter the dairy will devote its efforts entirely to San Mateo county. The demand in this county is steadily growing, and in order to keep pace with the community's growth, extensive improvements have been planned."

COURT REQUESTED TO DECLARE YOUTH DEAD

A petition to have Edwin Bray Pitcher, son of the late Justice of the Peace John Pitcher, declared legally dead has been filed in the Superior Court in Redwood City.

According to the petition, Edwin Bray Pitcher disappeared from Redwood City some twenty years ago, and has not been heard from since. Justice of the Peace Pitcher died February 24, 1924, and in his will made provision that his son Edwin was to have $2,000 of the estate, if he were alive and could be located. An investigating firm of San Francisco has come forward with the information that after investigation it has reason to believe that the son died several years ago under another name. Thomas Benton Pitcher and Louisa Pitcher, brother and sister of Edwin, are petitioners to have the brother declared legally dead, so that the estate may be distributed.

OPENS FIGHT FOR BROTHER'S ESTATE

Mrs. Haden Hatch, wife of the former head of the California Bank of San Mateo County at San Bruno and a resident of San Mateo Park, has instituted proceedings in the courts of Los Angeles to break the will of her brother, Dr. Norman Bridge, who left an estate of several million dollars, the bulk of which he bequeathed to charity. The will of Dr. Bridge, who had been living in Chicago during recent years, was admitted to probate without contest in the courts of the state of Illinois. Under her laws of Illinois a decedent may bequeath as much of his estate as he pleases to charity. Under the California law he may not bequeath more than one-third of his fortune. For this reason the contest is being brought in California.

Large Class Will Graduate

Ninety-two students will be graduated from the San Mateo Union high school next June, according to the list of candidates announced from the office of Principal W. L. Glascock.

LIMOUSINE MODEL DOG CARRIER UNIQUE

Wherever Bill Sykes of Los Angeles, here shown, goes, so does his dog "Cactus." The canine has traveled 30,000 miles with his master in this especially built limousine-type carrier attached to the running board of his car.

GOOD MANNERS IN MOTORING URGED

Connecticut Expert Outlines Code of Ethics for Use of Drivers.

Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles of the state of Connecticut, has proposed the following code of ethics or good manners in motoring:

"To be a good driver, in the terms of applied ethics, is to be a person of good manners, truly an altruist, ready to see and appreciate the problems of others, to make proper allowance for them and to exercise even a little more patience, care and consideration than is actually called for by the letter of the law.

"Driving an automobile through water or mud so as to splash same on pedestrians is a common pastime with some motorists who have peculiar ideas of what constitutes a joke.

"Give proper warning to pedestrians and other users of the highway. Even animals should receive reasonable notice.

Use Horn for Safety.

"The horn should be reserved for safety purpose; not to signal a person inside of a house nor to attract the attention of people passing.

"Give proper attention to headlights. They often cause inconvenience and danger to others.

"Disobeying the instructions received from traffic officers and trying to steal a few feet of space, instead of remaining in a proper spot, not only annoys pedestrians and other motorists but is a dangerous practice.

"Starting an argument with a traffic officer is not only bad etiquette but is causing trouble with the law.

"Keep in the middle of the road." Is a tip that has been construed literally by the roadhog. Drivers of heavy vehicles should keep to the right side of the highway where they belong.

"A common offense against road etiquette is committed when a motor car operator places his car at a crossing so as to obstruct pedestrian traffic, thus compelling pedestrians to walk around his machine.

Keep Looking Ahead.

"Drivers who wish to be considerate of other people will concentrate on what they are doing, look where they are going, not attempt to gaze at passersby and stay in line.

"The exercise of kindness to others, consideration and true courtesy will prevent any operator from getting a wrong attitude of mind for driving in traffic. Any operator who loses his temper, who becomes sulky, or is abnormal from any one of many different causes is unfit to drive because his automobile provides a medium of expression for his personality. If that personality is upset, he is bound to make trouble for himself or for others, generally for both."

Smartness Found Great Handicap to Drivers

What sort of a chauffeur would Emerson, Socrates, or Wordsworth have made? Would any of the philosophers, noted professors and great thinkers have been or be, if now living, safe and sane automobile drivers?

The psychologist answers an emphatic no. Because the minds of such men are usually preoccupied, a condition popularly known as absent-mindedness, the thinker, the dreamer and the schemer are said to lack that coordination of mind and muscle which is essential in the operation of a motor vehicle.

Under existing traffic conditions and prevailing speeds drivers who direct their minds from the business of driving and their eyes from the road ahead are the cause of many accidents.

Modern motoring demands concentration, but the driver who concentrates on subjects foreign to his driving is probably a greater traffic menace than the driver who is incapable of concentration.

Loosen Engine-Cylinder Head by Use of Prybar

A cylinder head, put on after shellac has been applied to both sides of the gasket, may be very difficult to remove, especially if the gasket must be used again. Driving a wedge under one edge is a practice which invariably destroys the gasket. Slacking off the bolts and starting the engine is almost certain to blow the gasket, and the mechanic is often puzzled for a good method of removing the head with the least damage. In the illustration a prybar method of removal is shown. Simply provide an S-shaped hanger, one end of which can be passed through the spark-plug holes, while a bar engages the upper hook. The tightest cylinder head will come off readily and the gasket can, in most cases, be used again.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Removing Cylinder Head of Automobile Engine With Prybar Usually Saves Gasket.

Cranking Not Necessary When Engine Is Stubborn

Many motor owners prime their engines, close the relief cocks, turn on the switch and crank until their backs nearly break. A much easier way is to prime the engine with relief cocks open, turn over the engine about twice to each cylinder, then close relief cocks, turn on the switch and throw the wheel back against the compression, and nine times out of ten it will start on the first or second attempt. The reason is that the prime charge is too rich to ignite quickly. The air taken into the relief cocks helps to make a good mixture quickly. It might take 20 revolutions at the crank to get enough oxygen in through the carburetor to vaporize the prime.

Clear View for Safety

To secure a clear view ahead through the glass of the windshield in rainy weather is vitally important to the safety of the motor car and its occupants. Many schemes are used to keep the glass clear in wet weather, but perhaps the old-fashioned alcohol and glycerin mixture which is carried in a small bottle and rubbed on the glass as needed is best. If the bottle containing the solution is wrapped in a cloth and stowed in the side pocket it will always be ready for use and a cloth to apply it with will be at hand.

Loose Battery Terminals

The cable terminals of old storage batteries frequently slip into the battery connector so far that the cap screw does not draw the connection to a tight fit. This results in high resistance and eventually prevents enough current getting across from the battery to start the engine. If lead foil is wrapped around the cable terminal until it fits the battery connector a really tight fit will be the result.

Why Sparking at Brushes

The commutator is the most vulnerable part of a direct current machine, and should be inspected at more frequent intervals than any other single part. If sparking occurs at brushes, it indicates poor brush contact, caused by either worn brushes, weak brush holder springs, excessive vibration, which may be caused by a bent shaft, an unbalanced gear pinion or improper mounting.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Statistics received from the Attorney General in Washington show that the San Francisco office, in charge of George J. Hatfield, United States District Attorney, is one of the most important in the country. The figures show that it ranks with Chicago and New York City. The population of the northern district of California, is 1,746,000; that of Chicago district 3,824,000; and that of New York City district, 3,801,000. During the last fiscal year the San Francisco office secured 1,283 convictions in criminal cases as against 1,020 in Chicago and 2,926 in New York City; conducted 171 jury trials, to 75 in Chicago and 134 in New York City and imposed fines amounting to $360,000, compared to $498,000 in Chicago and $369,000 in New York City. In addition to the appellate work of the Northern California district the San Francisco office takes care of the appeals from the District Courts of Hawaii, Shanghai and Alaska.

Every county from Sacramento to Los Angeles will be represented in the eighteenth annual Raisin Festival, to be held in Fresno, April 15, according to T. R. La Senay, manager of California's big annual agricultural celebration. Sacramento, Stockton, Modesto, Merced, Madera, Dinuba, Hanford, Bakersfield and Los Angeles have either made entries or the counties in which they are located have notified the Festival association they would take part in the spring fete.

The core of the famous "Baldwin No. 25," the deepest well ever bored, has been donated to the geology department of Stanford University for experimental work, through the assistance of Joseph Jensen, geologist of the Pacific Oil company. This acquisition is one of the most valuable the oil geology department at Stanford has ever made, as it provides a complete sample of oil bearing formations of the Los Angeles Basin oil country.

One hundred thousand spring lambs will be shipped from Kern county during the coming season, according to Louis Oleese, prominent Kern county sheepman. Shipments will begin April 1, and continue for a period of about sixty days. The principal markets will be Los Angeles, San Francisco and the eastern states, Oleese said. At the present time there are approximately 150,000 head of sheep in Kern county.

The first and second districts of the California Library association met recently at the Fairmont hotel in San Francisco, in formal discussion of library and educational work as being done by the association throughout California. Prominent educators of the two state universities spoke on the promotion and progress of state library work, and committees reported their findings of the past few months.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson telegraphed President A. E. Hoagland of the Kern County Farm Bureau at Bakersfield to learn what stand the board of directors wished to be maintained respecting foreign labor immigration, particularly in connection with the San Joaquin valley, where cotton production has made the labor problem one of the acute agrarian issues of the day.

The victory of the United States in the bitterly contested Parente case, recently tried in San Francisco, is of particular interest at the present time. The government's efforts to suppress the liquor traffic by stopping the sources of supply were notably encouraged by the verdict in this case. Five defendants were convicted of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

With a grand jury recommendation that the old high school building at Sanger, Fresno county, be condemned starting them in the face, the people of Sanger will vote on the $270,000 bond issue. The bonds will remodel the old building and build a new one and put in equipment to raise the school to the A accredited grade.

The $1,300 sterilizing plant in the county hospital at Redding, Shasta county, was wrecked recently by the explosion of the hot water tank connected with it. The explosion made a loud report that roused the seventy patients in the institution. The window of the room was carried away bodily and the plastering knocked off the walls and ceiling.

With the organization of an associated labor bureau and the establishment of offices at Calexico, El Centro and Brawley, Imperial valley farmers are opening a campaign to help Mexican laborers secure papers of admission to the United States.

As the oldest town in the San Joaquin valley, aside from Stockton, Visalia claims a background of romantic frontier life and activity that would furnish themes for thrilling scenarios or the most exciting fiction and melodrama.

Organization of a Rotary Club for Davis, Yolo county, is planned for the near future, preliminary work to that end now being done by City Attorney Forest A. Plant and E. S. McBride. The Sacramento club will probably be asked to act as the formal institution of the organization.

Mrs. R. L. Cardiff of Santa Cruz has been appointed by Governor Friend W. Richardson to attend the national safety conference to be held at Washington, D. C., the 23rd and 25th of this month. Mrs. Cardiff is the first vice-president of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Boy Scouts of Davis, Yolo county, are being called together for a determined mosquito drive in the city limits.

A meeting for the purpose of forming a Merced County Bar association was held in Merced, Merced county, recently.

A meeting of farm bureau leaders of Kern, Tulare, Kings, Madera and Fresno counties was held in Madera recently.

Expenditures totaling $124,000 will be made by the Pacific Gas and Electric company in the vicinity of Oroville, Butte county, this year.

Orders were given to the state traffic officers by Will H. Marsh, chief of the state division of motor vehicles to arrest all motorists found driving machines with 1925 license plates.

Arrangements are being made through committees of the Kings county chamber of commerce and the county farm bureau for a cotton conference to be held in Hanford soon.

H. L. Smith, secretary of the Board of Trade of San Francisco, for more than thirty-three years prior to his resignation in 1904, died recently at his home in San Rafael at the age of 80 years.

A comprehensive program for the present year has been mapped out by the Willows Chamber of Commerce under the management of Stephen Goin, president and Charles Brown secretary.

Arbor day was observed at Redding, Shasta county, by the Women's Auxiliary of the Redding Chamber of Commerce, setting out trees around the school houses and setting out shrubs in the grounds.

Construction of the new Southern Pacific passenger station in Madera, Madera county, is expected to be commenced during the last of the present month or the first of April, according to announcements.

Water rates on the Glenn-Colusa Irrigation district, at Willows, Glenn county, during the present season will remain practically the same as last year, it has been decided by the board of directors of the district.

Registration of 16,019 voters in Kern county was shown in totals compiled by County Clerk Frank E. Smith. The activity in registration is greater this year than in past seasons according to the county clerk.

The Lemoore, Kings county, Chamber of Commerce will appoint a committee to co-operate with the Volunteer Firemen's Association in raising Lemoore's quota of $440 for financing the Boy Scout work in Lemoore.

The Winship school district in Sutter county, will on March 29, vote on a proposition to issue bonds in the sum of $25,000 for the purpose of erecting a new school building. Hollow the construction is being contemplated.

The Pacific Gas and Electric company has filed an application with the state railroad commission for the purchase of the Bell Electric company of Auburn, Placer county, which conducts an electrical distributing business in Auburn and vicinity.

Governor Richardson recently reappointed Edward A. Dickson, Los Angeles publisher, and James Mills, Glenn county farmer, as members of the Board of Regents of the University of California. They were given terms of sixteen years each.

That the largest shipments to ripe olives ever made from the Oroville district since the establishment of the industry in California were those of the past month, is the announcement of B. B. Meek, president of the Mount Ida and Elmann Olive companies.

Only those voters who have registered since January 1 are eligible to participate in the election of school trustees in the various California districts on March 26, Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instructions, announced recently upon advice from Attorney General U. S. Webb.

One of Woodland's, (Yolo county), oldest landmarks of other days, the Old Armory, whose construction goes back to the earliest days of Woodland sixty years ago, is to be razed by order of the city council, following its condemnation as a fire trap. The building was a center of social activity in Woodland when the national guard was in its prime.

A great deal of activity is expected in lumbering in Modoc county during the 1926 season and sawmill men are already beginning their plans for the season's cut. With the almost certain railroad development promised for this region and the big demands for lumber consequent upon building operations now planned, the 1926 cut promises to be a heavy one.

A recommendation to the Washington officials requesting a greater number of men for enforcement of the prohibition law on land, and an increase in the coast guard fleet, was made recently by the Pacific Coast federal prohibition directors in a special conference called by Colonel Ned M. Green, of San Francisco, the prohibition administrator of northern California.

A decision in favor of the government, which asked a permanent restraining order to prevent A. A. Hall and C. F. Lunn, both of Quincy, Plumas county, from interfering with the construction of a recreation park by the city of Oakland, near Quincy, was handed down by Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan, a short time ago.

The California National Guard announced that efforts will be made to equal the drill attendance efficiency of the New York state militia by 1927. The crack New York units, it was said have an average attendance of 80.9 per cent at all drill and maneuvers

Captain Kidd's Fatal Mistake

THE die had been cast and Capt. William Kidd, whom King William had sent out to catch pirates, had decided to be a pirate himself and had announced his intention of "ballasting his ship with gold and silver from the Mocha fleet." So to the port of Babb's Key where the Mocha fleet was loading its cargo, Captain Kidd's ship, the Adventure, sailed. And then the Mocha fleet one night stole out of the harbor, outwitted the would-be pirate and got clean away! But Captain Kidd was soon in hot pursuit and, catching up with it, this daredevil English seaman pushed his little galley into the midst of the big merchantmen and opened the battle. But alas for the crew's dream of rich loot! The Adventure was roundly peppered by the merchantmen's guns and forced to fall back while the fleet continued on its way to India. So grumbling arose among the crew.

Captain Kidd tried in vain to recoup his fortunes. But the few captures which he made after the escape of the Mocha fleet were unimportant. The climax came in a battle with the Portuguese ship, the Loyal Captain. For five hours the two ships banged at each other. Then the Portuguese sailed away and all the pirates had to show for their work was ten badly wounded men. The grumbling among the crew increased.

It came to a head in the person of Gunner Moore, who made so bold as to say that he could have shown Captain Kidd a way to have taken the Loyal Captain and that "without any risk." There was a sting in those three words with their insinuation of cowardice on the captain's part.

"Which way could you have put me in a way to take that ship without risk?" he demanded. The gunner sought refuge in a lie. "Sir," he protested, "I never spoke such a word nor ever thought such a thing." "You lousy dog!" roared the captain. "If I am a lousy dog, you have made me so," cried Moore desperately. "You have brought me to ruin and many more"—this last a subtle appeal for the support of his mates. "Have I then ruined you, ye dog?" cried the infuriated pirate. "Then take that!"

Captain Kidd seized a heavy wooden basket bound with iron hoops and struck the gunner a crushing blow upon the head. Gunner Moore died. His words and actions had been incipient mutiny and as such his captain was justified in punishing it thus. But that one blow proved to be Captain Kidd's fatal mistake. For it he paid in Execution dock.

The End of Captain Kidd

MOMENTOUS as was the killing of Gunner Moore in determining the final fate of Captain Kidd, it also marked a turn for the better in his fortunes. For soon after this incident he scored his first successes, the capture of two Moorish ships, although he had to resort to the subterfuge of flying the French flag to do it. Then came the climax of his career.

He captured a ship named the Quedah Merchant, commanded by an English skipper but chartered by a company of Armenians. Its cargo was valued at more than 10,000 pounds sterling, one of the most valuable prizes ever taken by a pirate, and for the first time Kidd was able to keep his promise to his crew to ballast his vessel with gold and silver and make them all rich men when their share of the loot was distributed.

This capture was followed by others, none, however, so valuable. Then Kidd decided to turn for home and give an accounting to the partners in his original enterprise, particularly Lord Bellamont. In the meantime ugly rumors had been coming back to England about Kidd's doings in the South seas and in December, 1698, a general pardon had been offered for all pirates who would surrender themselves—with two exceptions: Captain Avery and Captain Kidd. So when Captain Kidd arrived in New York in May, 1699, Lord Bellamont who was then visiting in Boston was placed in an extremely embarrassing position—he was the partner of a man whom he must arrest.

Before going to Boston Captain Kidd put in at Gardiner's island, at the end of Long Island sound, and there buried a part of the treasure which has formed the basis for so many romantic stories and which has been sought for so vainly for so long. This burying of the treasure may have had something to do with the quarrel which is said to have arisen between Kidd and Bellamont and his other partners, the upshot of which was that Kidd was arrested and sent to London for trial.

The case became a great scandal and it was easy to predict who would be the scapegoat. Kidd was formally charged with piracy and murder. He could have met the charge of piracy by proving that the ships which he had taken were lawful prizes had it not been for the fact that certain documents to substantiate his claims disappeared (he had given them to Bellamont). Incidentally, those documents were found 200 years later in the public records office—200 years too late to save an innocent man. But almost any excuse was good enough for the authorities, so they found him guilty of murder, the killing of Gunner Moore, and for that he died a Wapping on May 23, 1701.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

TWENTY-ONE SHIPS FOR LEGIONNAIRES

Commandant Z. Peckhoff, official representative of the French government, has been in this country for some time co-operating with the officials of the American Legion France convention travel committee, which is charged with the gigantic task of placing 30,000 Legionnaires on French soil when the Legion meets in national convention in Paris in 1927.

With the French government co-operating, through the able agency of Commandant Peckhoff, the plans for the unprecedented migration of the Legionnaires are rapidly approaching completion.

The commandant recently accompanied the Legion's committee to New York city, where sample ships that will carry the veterans to France were inspected. The Legion has chartered 21 ships for the trip, with three or four reserve vessels. Ports of departure are New York, Boston, Montreal, Hampton Roads, Charleston and Jacksonville.

After the inspection of the ships at New York, Commandant Peckhoff accompanied the convention committee to Washington, where they were received by President Coolidge and Henri Victor Berenger, French ambassador.

In speaking of the Legion convention in Paris, Ambassador Berenger said: "The French people will welcome you; all will welcome you as the great Americans whose achievements know no end. All France talks of this unparalleled expedition. Nothing like it has ever occurred before. We of France extend to you every aid possible."

Commandant Peckhoff is an officer and a hero of the famous French Foreign Legion. He only recently returned with wounds from active duty with his battalion in the Moroccan campaigns. His right arm was blown off by an explosive machine gun bullet in 1915. He served with distinction throughout the World War.

Commandant Peckhoff is not a stranger to this country. Following the war he made an extensive lecture tour throughout the nation, speaking about the devastated regions of France. He was received by President Harding in 1921.

Incompetent Guardians Are Being Eliminated

Unfit guardians of children of World War veterans who are receiving compensation allowances from the government are being removed just as rapidly as they can be searched out, declared Mark T. McKee of Detroit, Mich., chairman of the national children's welfare committee of the American Legion. The Legion committee is co-operating with the United States veterans' bureau in eliminating all incompetent and undesirable guardians.

Fully 50 per cent of those who were originally named as guardians of minor children and mentally incompetent veterans were unqualified for the work, veterans' bureau officials have said. Guardians who are qualified for their work are being appointed, according to Mr. McKee.

Organization of the Legion's child welfare service in the various states will be completed in a few weeks.

Shattered Romance

"Lawsy, but Ah suttinly does hates to lose dis job," sighed the colored maid upon being discharged. "You have a family to support?" asked her late mistress. "No'm, but Ah's got an engagement to be broke," groaned the girl.—The American Legion Weekly.

Just a Stunt

"But why did you shoot your husband?" asked the puzzled detective. "I just had to," sobbed the "movie" star. "It was either his life—or—me." "Ah, I see! Or your life?" "No-o. Or my job."—American Legion Weekly.

Mother and the Girls Were the Only Real Victors in the World War

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, in Designer Magazine.

LET US consider the home, particularly the American home, of this new decade. Wherein does it differ from the same home twenty, thirty, forty years ago?

The answer is obviously in machinery, convenience, labor-saving comforts, emancipating luxuries. The thing which this decade is doing for women, in America at least, is physical in its outward expression. Machines are liberating the physical body of women from the toil that their mothers and grandmothers had to know. The hours of service not merely for women in industry, which have been steadily decreasing for two decades, but for women in the home, are growing shorter all the time. Wires and tubes are bringing service which once was back-breaking and knuckle-racking and eye-straining upon the mother and wife and sister. The modern home is designed with wisdom and love. Women are being physically emancipated today. But emancipated for what?

No one who looks at the world can doubt seriously that the new liberty is in many cases transgressed by considerable abuse of license. Smoking among women is a gesture with which they indicate their freedom. The cigarette, the occasional more or less surreptitious d—n, the latchkey to sister's bachelor-girl apartments are the overflowing froth upon the brimming cup of women's freedom. It is thus that woman scoffs cynically at her past. Soon the froth will dissolve and the cup will brim without it.

For woman is coming into a new relationship in western life. With physical emancipation she is getting wider spiritual latitude than she ever had before. She is seeing, examining, questioning, challenging the good and evil of the world. And if she blinks and giggles and is a bit frivolous, it is passing hysteria which will soon leave her calm and unafraid, unabashed and free.

The war, so far as boundaries are concerned, so far as indemnities and reparations go, has left victor and vanquished unsatisfied. The armies of men on both sides were the losers. Mother and the girls were the only real victors in this war. They came out freer than they went in.

"The Problem of Crime Is Now the Problem of the Adolescent Child"

By JUDGE ANDREW A. BRUCE, Northwestern University.

The curse of the American administration of the criminal law is our politics, our spoils system, the fact that the underworld has a vote as well as the upper world, and above all the short tenure of office of all our public officials. Our government, to a large extent, is a government by greenhorns. Our frequent elections, and the necessity of begging for votes, make our politically elected and controlled police officers and magistrates unwilling to enforce the law, and they are looked upon as servants and inferiors and not as the agents of a superior government.

We headline crime everywhere in our newspapers and picture it in our playhouses and in our theaters. We have made it a familiar thing. We have been living in an automobile age, in an age of social display. Parents have set the pace, and their boys and girls have followed them.

We need reverence and contentment more than we need a reformed criminal code. We need God more than we need the law. The problem of crime is now the problem of the adolescent child.

American Nation No Higher Morally Than Western States of Europe

By DAVID HARRISON, in English Review (London).

It is submitted that on an impartial survey there is not a shred of evidence to support American claims to superior morality. However charming the individual American with whom our leaders come into contact, and while recognizing the valuable relief work carried out in Europe by American effort, the fact remains that the United States as a nation is no higher morally than the western states of Europe, and certain disquieting facts suggest a definite inferiority in some respects. Certainly her foreign policy during and since the war—with its failure to discern any moral difference between the belligerents until her own interests were directly touched, her desertion of Europe and Armenia during the critical years of the "peace" and her treatment of war debts on a strictly commercial basis, although her states and cities shamelessly repudiated their debts after the Civil war—suggests a nation acting deliberately according to self-interest.

There Are Only Five True Tastes: Sour, Alkaline, Sweet, Bitter, Salt

By PROF. D. FRASER HARRIS, in Conquest (London).

We have only the following true tastes: Acid, or sour; alkaline, or soapy; sweet, bitter and salt. Vinegar is sour, baking powder is soapy, sugar is sweet, quinine is bitter and salt is saline. Anything in addition to these that we may perceive in regard to what we take into the mouth belongs either to the group of the odors, to that of contacts, or to that of sensations of heat and cold. In other words, nerves of taste, of smell, of touch, and of heat and cold are all involved in what we call "tasting" anything. If you are asked what the taste of an apple is like you would reply, "Oh, well, just its own taste, the taste of an apple." But there is no such taste; an apple must be sweet or sour; what we call the "taste" of the apple is its flavor or smell, which can be perceived before the fruit is taken into the mouth at all.

"As the Result of the Commercial Application of Scientific Inventions"

By ALDOUS HUXLEY, in Vanity Fair (New York).

The really great simplifications of our mental life, it is asserted, have been brought about "as the result of the commercial application of scientific inventions." The results of this excessive facilitation are, first, an atrophy of the artistic, musical and dramatic faculties of those who accept their amusements ready made; and, second, an increase of boredom. There is nothing nowadays corresponding to the peasant art, the folk-songs, the traditional plays and mummings of the past. The talent which produced these things lies latent; ready-made standardized entertainment has effectively prevented it from expressing itself. But ready-made art can never be as completely satisfying to a man as the art he makes himself. The cinema, the gramophone, the wireless are distractions; but they do nothing to satisfy man's desire for self-assertion.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE ORANG-UTAN

"Visitors, visitors," said Toto, the orang-utan to himself.

Now, an orang-utan is of the monkey family, only he is bigger than the usual monkey.

"A very nice little girl is coming to see me," Toto said once more.

Sure enough! The keeper brought a little girl named Lucy over near Toto's cage.

"Well, what can you do today?" the keeper asked.

Toto put his arm out of the cage and patted the keeper as though to say:

"I'll do some tricks. Never fear." The keeper opened Toto's cage and Toto jumped out. The keeper took him in his arms, and he was a pretty big armful, too.

Toto put his arms around the keeper's neck, and when the keeper said: "Shake hands with Lucy," he did so most politely.

Then the keeper put Toto back in his cage, leaving the door open, and he took a big piece of rope and tied knot after knot in it.

"Now, Toto, show Lucy and all the other visitors at the zoo what sort of an orang-utan you are."

"Show them your best trick."

Then Toto sat down on the floor of his big cage and began to untie the knots. He did every single one of them, too, and some of them were mighty hard.

Everyone looked at Toto and said to themselves and to each other, "We could not do that."

When Toto was all through and had untied every one of the knots, he clapped his hands, as though to give himself some praise and applause, and then he grinned so no one would think he was conceited.

For he was not conceited at all and he wouldn't want any one to think he was.

He thought every creature should be able to do some tricks and that it was only natural he should, too.

Toto began to feel playful after this and found an orange, an apple, a pear and a banana, which in turn he threw to the keeper and Lucy, and they put each piece of fruit back again.

Toto thought that was a fine game and he kept playing it with the keeper and Lucy for quite a while.

Then he had a glorious hay fight with Lucy.

They threw some of the hay in Toto's cage back and forth and if Toto had been able to talk the talk of human beings he would have said that hay fights were the greatest fun in the world, particularly when you had such a jolly person with whom to play as Lucy.

He admired Lucy very much. He liked to hear her laugh and hear her voice and he liked to hear her say:

"I'm just crazy about it."

He knew she wasn't really crazy about anything—that is he knew she wasn't in the least scrap, particle, bit, crazy in any possible way.

It was even crazy to think such a thought for a second, or even speak of the fact that Lucy wasn't certainly most crazy!

But he knew that when she said she was crazy about anything it meant she liked it tremendously, and he was delighted when the keeper asked if she liked the hay fight with Toto to hear her say:

"I'm just crazy about it."

Then he did fine tricks on his trapeze and gave a performance which was even better than his usual one, so the keeper was more than ever proud of him.

Dog's Adopted Mother

Virginia was out walking when she came across a forlorn-looking dog. He cuddled in her arms when she picked him up and seemed to belong to no one. She took him home and decided to keep him.

"Where did you get that dog? To whom does he belong?" asked daddy. "To me. I'm his adopted mother," impressively informed Virginia.

The Baking Powder Girl

By SIDNEY BLAIR

(Copyright.)

"THE man who said New York's a town of strangers was right," Neal Fuller told himself as he strode down Fifth avenue. "It's the loneliest place in the world—me for San Francisco the minute my work's done."

Neal was hungry, but he hated the thought of another lonely dinner in a strange restaurant. He decided to get something at a delicatessen and take it back to his hotel, first! That would be better than eating where he could see other people dining with each other.

He turned down a cross street near Washington Square and went to Sixth avenue. Just ahead of him was a girl with a Pekinese puppy. She turned into a delicatessen store, and he followed.

"Probably going to get some cold ham and potato salad for her husband's supper!" he thought disgustingly.

When the pretty girl with the dog was waited on, she bought—baking powder.

"Great Jerusha, she must be going to bake!" thought Neal, and envied the man she was going to do it for. He was so absorbed in his thoughts that he didn't even notice what was happening till suddenly he realized that the Peke had his leash neatly wound around Neal's legs.

The girl apologized and together they unwound the leash. She dropped the baking powder, too; it hadn't been wrapped yet, and somehow the lid came off, deluging Neal with the white contents of the can.

"Oh, how dreadful!" The girl's lovely face turned pinker than ever. "How terrible! I—oh, can't I do something about it? I live just a few doors from here—if you'd come home with me, I'm sure mother could get it off."

Neal's dark blue trousers were smeared white; it really seemed the only thing to do.

Back to her apartment they went, a charming little place high in a great apartment building. He met Mrs. Lane, the pretty girl's mother, and he and Felicia—the pretty girl—looked out of a big window at the roofs of the city and its curving bridges, while Mrs. Lane got dinner in an absurdly small kitchenette.

In the dining room there was a picture that made him turn to them suddenly with a question.

"That picture—surely it's the gulls flying over the bay in San Francisco?"

"Of course it is. That's where we come from," they answered in one breath.

"Great Jerusha!" was all that Neal could say.

After dinner they went to the "movies." Two days later, Sunday, they picnicked on the Palisades. Neal swore that he'd never tasted such good sandwiches and salad—beautifully served in a scooped-out cabbage.

Neal no longer thought of New York as a lonely city. Suddenly it had become the friendliest city in the world—except San Francisco, of course. There were many delightful little meals at the Lanes' apartment, many dinners at the big restaurants where Neal entertained them, lonely places no longer.

"I was shocked out of my shoes that day I met you, when you bought baking powder," Neal told Felicia, one afternoon. "I'd been watching the other women who were scrambling dinner together out of the shelves of tinned goods, and I'd about decided that there weren't any women in New York who could cook."

A few days later Felicia appeared with a bandaged hand. She'd hit it with a hammer, she said, when she was putting up some pictures. A little later the other hand showed a long, red scar. Burned, she explained—she'd been using a curling iron, and it had slipped and burned her.

"But I thought your hair was naturally curly," protested Neal.

"It is!" stammered Felicia.

She looked unhappy, somehow; her blue eyes, where gaiety usually danced, grew sad. Neal wondered what was the reason. He'd come to feel that he wanted to protect her from the world. He tried hard to find out what was the matter, but Felicia put him off. She said the Peke hadn't been well and she was worried about him.

"I always thought, till I knew you, that a woman who likes little dogs was rather a fool," Neal told her, apologetically. "It seemed so silly for them to waste their time with lap dogs when they might better be taking care of children."

"Wang thinks he's a big dog," she answered, with spirit. "And you can't take care of children when you haven't any to take care of!"

"Felicia, will you marry me?" Neal demanded suddenly. "I've loved you ever since that first day, three months ago. Please, Felicia, dear, marry me."

"No," said Felicia. And there were tears in her eyes when she said it. Neal took her by the shoulders and turned her around so that she had to face him. "Why not?" he demanded.

"Because I can't cook," she answered, and the tears overflowed. "I've tried my best, since you said a woman ought to know how. I've burned myself terribly. I don't know a thing about cooking, and I don't believe I ever will."

"Great Jerusha!" exclaimed Neal, taking her in his arms. "As if a little thing like that mattered!"

MADE HIS OWN JOB

It seems that there should always be a job in this world for any person who really wants to work, and there probably is if he only knows how to find it.

That using one's head is often better than wandering aimlessly about seeking work is illustrated by the experience of a French Canadian, who removed to Vermont and spent the summer looking after cottage dwellers on the shores of Lake Champlain. When the season was over he was out of work, but he had thirteen children and something had to be found to help tide them over the winter.

He heard that the Vermont school law required the township board to furnish transportation for any group of ten or more children living more than two miles from a school house. Ten of his thirteen children were of school age, so he asked the board to furnish them transportation. They agreed that his request was not to be ignored, so he was employed to take his own children to school at three dollars a day.

Yes, there is usually a job for each of us somewhere, if we can only use our heads to find it.

EDUCATORS PROTEST

As a protest against the growing tendency of legislators to meddle with our public school system, the superintendents' division of the National Educational Association, at its recent convention in Washington, adopted a resolution containing the following:

"Only that education can be free which provides, under conditions appropriate to the age of the student, complete liberty to seek the answer to any honest question. We would respectfully remind our fellow citizens that while legislation seeking to control the subject matter of the curriculum may impede educational progress, it has not the power to alter, modify, or set aside any immutable law of nature, science, or of God."

In that resolution the educators compressed a lot of wholesome truth into a very few words.

AS YOUNG AS SHE SINGS

Perhaps the saying "a woman is as old as she looks," might be paraphrased to read, "a woman is as young as she sings." At any rate, it would be appropriate in the case of Mme. Schumann-Heink, who has just returned to grand opera. She will be 65 on June 15 next.

In the present season at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York she is sharing honors with Marion Talley, 19-year-old prima donna, the two being fast friends.

Mme. Schumann-Heink has had a career almost without a parallel, especially as it appears to be by no means finished. She was the principal contralto of the Dresden Court Opera at 17, when she first appeared as Azucena in "Il Trovatore," and at an early age made a great reputation in Wagnerian roles at Bayreuth. She was formerly a leading artist at the Metropolitan, to which she has now returned after several years on the concert stage.

To have ranked with the greatest singers of the world for forty-seven years is a wonderful record. From the ovation which was accorded Mme. Schumann-Heink upon her return to opera a short time ago, it seems safe to say that she will round out a half century of high artistic achievement.

FOOLS MUST PAY

A short time ago a couple of Americans bet Leon Collet, a French aviator, that he could not fly through the Eiffel Tower arch. He took the bet, tried the feat and was killed.

Now, it is said, the Americans are to be prosecuted for causing his death.

The interesting question arises, is every person who goes to witness a dare-devil stunt of any kind partly responsible should a similar mishap occur.

In the early days of aviation, dozens of flyers were killed while giving spectacular exhibitions, which thousands thronged to see. Fatalities still occur occasionally in changing from one airplane to another, and through similar foolhardy practices, such as high diving, "human fly" exhibitions, shooting Niagara Falls and the like.

We doubt whether anyone is seriously to blame except the one who takes his life in his hands to perform a spectacular feat for notoriety or financial gain.

The fool must pay for his folly, and Leon Collet paid for his, so the incident should be closed.

ODD MEDICAL IDEAS

Probably no science has been evolved from a greater mass of early superstition than that of medicine. Still, it is said that some of the old-time prescriptions may possibly have had a certain curative value although appearing ridiculous at first glance.

A recent writer declares that the broth of red ants was once used for intestinal disorders, and that modern research finds that the formic acid in ants is a strong antiseptic, which may have killed the intestinal germs.

Some believe that the sting of bees and wasps relieve rheumatism. These insects also secrete formic acid, the injection of which through the "stinger" may possibly have a beneficial effect.

Baked toad, ground to a powder, was used by the Greeks as a remedy for heart disease. Chemists find that there are certain alkaloids in the skin of a toad which act as a heart stimulant.

Some other old alleged remedies have not as yet been satisfactorily explained, however. Among the innumerable ones may be mentioned tying a pickled herring to each leg for dropsy; eating a dried and powdered magpie for epilepsy; carrying a buckeye in the pocket or sleeping with a black cat for rheumatism; various incantations for the removal of warts, and so on.

Considering the mystery which formerly surrounded most diseases, it is not surprising that equally mysterious remedies have been suggested and applied. And while we have made amazing progress in medicine and surgery, the highest skill is still baffled by a few maladies that have been studied since the dawn of civilization.

TAKES SLAM AT CHICAGO

An appeal to the federal government to rescue Chicago from the grip of lawlessness, presented to Vice-President Dawes by the Better Government League, reveals a situation, perhaps without parallel in the history of American communities, it is said. This situation can best be described by quoting verbatim from the petition which was presented by Dean Lee of the John Marshall Law School, acting president of the association, which reads:

"Evidence multiplies daily that many public officials are in secret alliance with underworld assassins, gunmen, rum-runners, thugs, ballot-box stuffers and repeaters; that a ring of politicians and officials, operating through criminals are selling beer under police protection, police working out of the principal law enforcement office of the city have been conveying liquor," and so on.

It is also asserted that more than one hundred bomb outrages have been perpetrated during the past year, with no convictions except when defendants pleaded guilty, and then they were released with little punishment.

The document was referred to the Senate immigration committee. There will be an investigation, perhaps.

That reminds us. Isn't it terrible that the Mexicans should tolerate such an awful place as Tijuana? Shouldn't Uncle Sam send an army down there, or something?

WOULD AID WAR VETERANS

Members of the California Congressional delegation at Washington have been appealed to by State Adjutant, James K. Fisk, of the American Legion to aid in getting approval of the bill designed to liberalize legislation affecting World War veterans.

The bill has already been approved by the House veterans' committee and provides for the payment of $50.00 monthly for five years to tubercular patients after they have reached condition of virtual recovery and would extend for two years the period of vocational rehabilitation work which now expires in June.

"We are faced with many pitiful cases of veterans with families who are unable to find work because of strict medical examination rules enforced by large companies in California and this legislation will provide a means of helping them," State Adjutant Fisk declares.

"Veterans who are rated as having 'arrested' cases of tuberculosis in some cases receive $20 a month but the majority receive no compensation. It is our hope that Congress will remedy this injustice," the Legion official points out.

TOM MIX IS COMING TO STATE THEATRE SUNDAY

Tom Mix, famous William Fox star, will be the attraction at the State Theatre next Sunday. "The Lucky Horseshoe" is the name of his latest picture and he is supported by one of the most brilliant casts ever assembled in one of his productions. Playing opposite Mr. Mix is dainty and delectable Billie Dove, who has been seen before as the heroine of dashing Tom's romances of the West. Ann Pennington, Follies dancer, also

WHEREAS, CHARLES GUST AND ANASTASSIA GUST, his wife, did heretofore make, execute and deliver a certain deed of trust, bearing date the thirty-first day of October, 1924, conveying to GEO. M. MITCHELL and JOHN HENDERSON, as trustees, certain real property, hereinafter described, and in said deed of trust particularly described, for the benefit of and to secure the payment of HOME MUTUAL DEPOSIT-LOAN COMPANY, a corporation, of the principal and interest of certain promissory note or loan agreement, also bearing date of October 31, 1924, payable to said Home Mutual Deposit-Loan Company, which deed of trust was recorded on the 5th day of November, 1924, in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Volume 127 of Official Records, at page 385 thereof; and

Whereas, on the 16th day of December, 1925, said Home Mutual Deposit-Loan Company recorded a notice of default and election to sell under said deed of trust, in Volume 209 of Official Records, at page 27, in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California; and

Whereas, said Home Mutual Deposit-Loan Company has made demand upon the undersigned, Geo. M. Mitchell and John Henderson, under the power and authority conferred upon them as trustees under said deed of trust, to sell the real property therein and hereinafter particularly described, to satisfy said indebtedness;

Now, therefore, in accordance with the terms and conditions and under the authority of said deed of trust, and in pursuance of a resolution passed and adopted on the 21st day of December, 1925, by the Board of Directors of said Home Mutual Deposit-Loan Company, the owner and holder of the promissory note or loan agreement heretofore referred to, declaring that default in the payment of principal and interest on said promissory note or loan agreement has been made and requesting and directing said Geo. M. Mitchell and John Henderson, as trustees, under the power and authority conferred upon them by said deed of trust, and in pursuance of said resolution, to sell said real property described in said deed of trust and hereinafter particularly described, to satisfy said indebtedness, the undersigned, Geo. M. Mitchell and John Henderson, do hereby give notice that, on TUESDAY, the 13th day of April, 1926, at the hour of ten o'clock a. m. of said day, at the office of Home Mutual Deposit-Loan Company, No. 232 Bush Street, in the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, they will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in gold coin of the United States, all that certain real property, lying and being in the Town of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, and described as follows:

Lot Numbered Five (5), in Block Lettered "T," as shown on that certain map entitled "Map showing subdivision of the property of the Mission Street Land Co., situated in San Francisco and San Mateo Cos., Cal.," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County July 31, 1925, in Book "B" or Original Maps, at page 73, and copied into Book 2 of Maps, at page 73.

Terms of Sale: Cash, ten (10) per cent payable to the undersigned at the fall of the hammer, balance upon delivery of deed, and if not so paid, unless for want of title, ten (10) days thereafter, and if not so paid, the sum of ten (10) per cent to be forfeited and the sale to be void.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Home Mutual Deposit-Loan Company, at San Francisco, California, this 18th day of March, 1926.

is in the cast, playing a character part as well as doing some of her famous dancing. J. Farrell MacDonald, ranking as one of the greatest character men of the screen today, is the comedy relief of the picture, together with J. Gunnis Davis; but MacDonald, the "Corporal Casey" of "The Iron Horse," carries the burden of the laugh-making. Malcolm Waite, who has won renown as a screen villain, is the "heavy" of the picture, with Clarissa Selwyn as his aide.

A decided feature of "The Lucky Horseshoe" is a Spanish sequence in which Tom Mix enacts the role of Don Juan, greatest lover of medieval times.

Miss Elizabeth Cattori, of Mission street, who was ill for several days, has recovered.

Mrs. B. W. Haubrich and Mrs. S. V. Fischer spent one day of this week in San Francisco.

Miss Irene Schenone motored to Capitola by the Sea with friends last Sunday and enjoyed the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heinze and children, of San Francisco, former residents of Colma, have returned to reside here.

The hats and coats of the Colma Volunteer Fire Department have arrived and are of fine quality and snappy style.

Mrs. Julia Sturla, who had the misfortune to trip and break her left wrist, is under the care of Dr. Ochner. Her many friends hope she will soon recover.

A whist party was given by the Cypress Circle, No. 14, U. A. O. D., recently in Jefferson Hall. Delicious refreshments were served after the game.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Callan, Misses Gladys Callan and Louise Silicani and Robert Callan motored to Rockaway Beach last Sunday, where they spent the day.

A number of local people attended the whist party in the St. Maximus parish hall and the St. Patrick's dance in the Daly City Auditorium last Wednesday evening, sponsored by the St. Maximus church.

Robert Silicani and Bert Silicani are starting in the scavenger business in Colma and Daly City. A new Mack truck has been purchased for this work. The Silicani brothers were born and raised in this county and have many friends who wish them success. They will start work on Monday.

The girls of the Eighth grade of the Jefferson grammar school are studying sewing under the direction of Miss M. E. Earl, the sewing and cooking teacher of the Jefferson grammar district. The girls are making great progress and the following have made dresses: Rose Olcese, Mary Gaggiro, Ethel Johns, Philomena Barsotti, Florence Kennedy, Emily Bauer, Elsa Calcagno, Lida Casentini, Esther Durbin, Marie Cairo and Diva Conci. Masilda Barsotti has made a lampshade.

A very successful whist party and dance was given for the benefit of the Colma Volunteer Fire Department last Saturday evening in the Colombo Auditorium. Harold Varni, who was chairman of the committee, and his assistants deserve much credit for the success of the party and dance. He will have charge of the April whist, and plans to make this the biggest affair yet given by the Colma Volunteer Fire Department. A San Francisco orchestra has been engaged to provide the music on this occasion. Be sure to attend.

The students of the Eighth grade of the Jefferson grammar school recently enjoyed a hike to Mount Tamalpais and Muir Woods. They left here at 7:30 a. m., and returned home at 9 p. m. They were chaperoned by Mr. Savage, Miss Traynor, Mrs. Lohr and Mrs. Muller. The following enjoyed the trip: Emily Bauer, Ethel Johns, Marie Cairo, Elsie Dailara, Louise Siemund, Esther Durbin, Margaret Muller, Alice Silicani, Matilda Barsotti, Philomena Barsotti, Florence Kennedy, Albert Bertucci, Oscar Del Sarto, Richard Varni, Orlandi Cecchi, Louise Magianti, Lester Arnold, Angelo Mozzini, George Olmo, Angelo Petri and Milo Newell.

One of the most successful plays ever given in this district was that which was presented by the Santana and Santangelo Clubs for the benefit of Holy Angels' church in the New Colma Theatre last Monday evening. This three act drama which was so skillfully presented before a crowded house was coached by Miss Mary Belli and Miss L. Collopy. Each member of the cast acted like a veteran of the stage. Following is a list of the talented artists: Mrs. Brooks, Clara Belli; Lucille Brooks, Rose Dianda; Peggy Sommers, Anita Varni; Melinda Preston, Victorine Bertini; Valentine Gardner, Albert Belli; Chesterfield McSwope, Mansueto Granucci; Allie Thomas, Rosa Bauer; George Pierce, James Varni; Dannie Banks, Ed. Devincenzi. A dainty and clever song and dance act was presented by a number of the little girls of the Catechism class of Holy Angels' church, dressed in white and adorned with wreaths of poppies.

TAX PAYMENTS BREAK PREVIOUS RECORDS

With mail receipts of income taxes amounting to $2,756,763 received by the Internal Revenue Department at San Francisco Tuesday, the total taxes paid in the district this year leaped to $7,709,641, it was announced by the collector. According to officials in charge of computing payments, the total for this year already exceeds that of last year by more than a million dollars. They pointed out that the increase, coming in spite of increased exemptions and a decrease in the tax rate, shows unparalleled prosperity for this district.

NOTICE OF HIGH SCHOOL TRUSTEES ELECTION.

On Friday, March 26th, 1926, one Trustee will be elected to the High School Board of Trustees.

Election boards will be the same as the boards appointed to conduct the grammar school elections.

In Jefferson district the polls will be open from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M., at the Jefferson Hall in Colma, the Crocker school in Daly City, and the Vista Grande school in Daly City, the districts being divided the same as for the grammar school election.

In Pedro, Tobin and Visitation Valley districts the polls will be open from 2 P. M. to 6 P. M.

SYNOPSIS OF LIFE OF ST. PATRICK

By REV. JAMES DONOHOE
Pastor St. Maximus Church

On one occasion in the west near Killala, he converted a chieftain, his six sons and 12,000 people. This would give some idea of the extent of his conversions. Here he remained seven years, forming dioceses, instructing and ordaining priests and bishops. From thence he set out for the north. During the following year the light of faith was spread by St. Patrick throughout the north. At Armagh he built his cathedral. When marking out the site he came upon a deer with its young. His followers would have killed it for food, but St. Patrick would not allow them. He took the fawn on his shoulders, followed by its mother; he set it down on a neighboring hill and announced that in future ages great glory would be given to the Most High there. On that same spot today stands the new Armagh Cathedral, which is one of the most beautiful temples erected to God in the entire world.

Once more he revisited Tara and the surrounding country and then proceeded to the South of the Island, where he was received with great enthusiasm and welcome. The fame of his miracles and sanctity had gone before him and made conquest easy. Here he spent many years, teaching, preaching and establishing his church. Before leaving the South he imparted to it a special blessing; he blessed even its hills and valleys, its lakes and rivers.

Great indeed were the labors of our Saint. He went up and down the land preaching, teaching and doing good, imitating the example of his Divine Master. Coming, he found the Island in darkness and the shadow of death; through his instrumentality it became the light of Europe, the home of sanctity and learning. When we remember that he consecrated no fewer than 350 and invested over 4,000 clerics with priesthood, we can form some idea of the number he received into the true fold.

The peculiar points in the doctrine of St. Patrick were fidelity to the Holy See, to the blessed Virgin Mary, the poor souls and the mutual confidence and love of the clergy and the people.

St. Patrick held up before the eyes of this new people the beauty, the harmony, unity and strength of the Catholic church; so vast as to fill the whole world and so united as if occupying one small village, embracing all, considering all, without tampering with their individual freedom.

The next characteristic instilled by St. Patrick was devotion to Mary. She was known in their native tongue as their darling Virgin, Mary-Mother, insinuating the mystery of the Incarnation. The great love of the Irish people for Mary is attested by the innumerable churches throughout the land erected in her honor; in every family in the land the eldest daughter's name was Mary. The daughters of Erin either emulated her purity and virginal innocence or the tenderness and purity of her maternal love. The innocence, the purity and the modesty of the Irish girl is acknowledged the world over. Humanity pays her a tribute of respect, her moral supremacy is unquestioned; the ineffable grace of maiden modesty which clings to the very mothers of Ireland is the reflection of Mary which lingered on earth.

The great bond of union which exists between the priests and people of Ireland was established in a special way by St. Patrick. This inter-union is more remarkable in Ireland than in any country in the world. There, as nowhere else, do they fully realize the high office the priest holds, the minister of Christ and the dispenser of holy things. There, as nowhere else, do they distinguish the two fold character, the man and the priest. If emphasis on these four points is the distinguishing feature of Irish faith throughout the world, it was due primarily to the preaching of St. Patrick and providential on the part of God, for these were so deeply rooted in the affections of the people that when the new religion came, its attack was principally on these, the most beloved of the church's doctrines, hence they became the shield and protection of the Irish faith, in the hour of adversity.

St. Patrick won no less renown for his preaching and miracles than for his penitential exercises. There is a tradition that during one of these St. Patrick sought and received several promises from God. (It was on Mount Patrick.) Amongst these promises were that seven years before the Judgement Day the ocean would spread over Ireland to save its people from the temptation of the Ante-Christ's. That he, Patrick would himself be the judge of the Irish people on the last day. St. Patrick on his death-bed saw in a vision the whole of Ireland lit up by the bright rays of divine faith; this continued for centuries, then a cloud gathered over his devoted island. Little by little the glory faded, until in the course of centuries it was only in remote valleys that some glimmer of it remained. The saint prayed that it would never be extinguished. An angel came to him and said, "Fear not, your apostolate shall never cease." As he prayed the glimmer grew in brightness until once more the hills and valleys were lit up in their pristine splendor. We shall see how his vision was fulfilled.

It is forever to the glory of the Irish people, the manner in which they kept and preserved the faith for 300 years after the death of our Saint. Churches and monasteries sprung up on all sides. Everywhere the virtues of the Saint were imitated and emulated. Great schools of learning were opened and students came from all parts of Europe to study there. Irish missionaries spread all over Europe. They evangelized and civilized England. In Italy we find nine Irish missionaries honored annually on the altar; in France ten; in Germany 150. We find their footsteps even as far north as Norway and Sweden.

Great indeed was the number of Saints and martyrs, Virgins and confessors, Ireland sent to swell the ranks of those who sing Hosannas before the great white throne, and so it continued up to the reformation, just as St. Patrick saw it, lit up by the rays of Divine faith. In the thirteenth century we find one of Ireland's greatest kings address his army drawn up for battle, calling upon them to fight for their faith as something dearer to them than life.

Today from his high place in Heaven, St. Patrick contemplates the myriads of souls around the throne of God saved through his instrumentality and looking down on earth, he beholds over 25,000,000 sons and daughters, with pure Irish blood coursing through their veins. Over all these he is exercising a special protection and is praying and yearning for the day when his vision will be fulfilled; when the cloud now rising from the beloved isle will have entirely disappeared, and it will be once more as it was in the days of old—the Island of Saints and Scholars.

It's a short worm that has no turning.

RADIO

Fig. 3—Showing the Scheme Devised by Glenn Browning for Neutralizing a Radio Frequency Receiver.

By L. W. HATRY

In New York-Herald Tribune.

Many home radio engineers, using the term engineer with extreme generality, design excellent little sets. That is, these home designers subtract ideas out of various articles they have read and screw them together to make a component whole including the things that they want. The men that do this sort of thing know a little of the technical and mysterious end of radio-electrics; but, much more important, they understand a deal of the practical application of things. This is written for these men. It is hoped that it will help somewhat in their rectifying a thing often done haphazardly.

First, at the risk of being uninteresting, let us go into the theory of the Hazeltine or any neutralizing scheme. The theory fits most of them, but the specific application discussed will be Hazeltine's.

The Neutralizing Arrangement.

There is a feed-back from plate to grid in a radio-frequency tube that results in the oscillation so annoying without some annulling or neutralizing scheme. The feed-back may be reduced by sacrifice of effectiveness, by introduction of losses or by a neutralizing, so-called, arrangement. The neutralizing idea works on what is known as the bridge principle. Notice the diagram in Fig. 1. The path from input to B plus, going backward for the moment, is a double one. The current can either go by the capacity of C and the inductance of L_1 , or by the capacity of GP and the inductance of L_2 (L_2 , because L is tapped in the middle). Now, if the current divided equally in both of those branches and reversed itself in one branch to result in opposition, the result at B plus would be nothing, assuming that we control the paths CL_1 and GPL_2 , so that they are equal, and thus pass equal but opposing forces. That being the case it becomes apparent that if L_1 and L_2 are equal the condenser C must have the same capacity as between GP. That sounds all right, but the capacity from G to P is very small, and it is quite a trick to provide so small a capacity at C without having the wires running from L and G overdo the job.

Now, the exact arrangement of Fig. 1 is being used at present in many sets employing a single stage of radio frequency amplification. The detector coupler primary L is a coil of double winding, two wires in parallel, or a single winding tapped in the center, as L indicates. Yet practical set conditions often make it impossible to put the proper capacity at C, so that the process of neutralizing is practically impossible successfully. This trouble is simple to rectify. If we express the relation mentioned in the foregoing paragraph in a mathematical formula, it will be:

$\frac{1}{2}LC = \frac{1}{2}LGP$ —permitting GP to represent capacity between grid and plate. It is apparent immediately that if any one member of the equation is reduced an increase of its partner will balance things again. If L is reduced, then C must be increased, or vice versa. That this is true offers a solution to the neutralizing trouble. It is general practice to use a small midge variable condenser whose capacity is .00003 mfd. or greater generally. Under the circumstances $\frac{1}{2}LC$ could just as well become $\frac{1}{2}LI$ on the C side of the equation. In this case L to C would be a half of L to P in turns, since the turns ratio make the voltage present at C. Speaking concretely, where L would ordinarily be a total of 36 turns tapped in the center, it should be instead 27 turns tapped to put 18 turns between P and B plus and 9 turns on the neutralizing side to the condenser C.

The Neutralizing Current.

The method of obtaining the necessary neutralizing current, as used in the neutrodyne, is well known. It is shown schematically in Fig. 2. What the foregoing should have imparted in part is that the balancing or neutralizing side of the bridge formed did not need so much to be actually part of the primary inductance L as merely a control circuit allowing the passage of the correct opposing current to the grid of the tube to be neutralized. So, if we arrange such a control circuit from a proper source of opposing current we can effect the same thing. This was done in the commercial neutrodyne by tapping off the inductance L_1 , which was secondary to L_2 , for the voltages or currents in a secondary circuit are generally completely out of phase with those in the primary. The primary L was almost always stuck at the filament end of L_1 , as Fig. 2 indicates, so that the voltage transfer from L to L_1 at the lower portions would be made with small loss. Thus the tap at L_1 generally included the same number of turns as were present in L, giving an oppositional current whose voltage was practically equal to that put on the plate by L. Control of the neutralizing capacity C would then put the exact neutralizing voltage on G. Since L and L_1 were equal the condenser C had to have the same capacity as that between grid and plate—a very hard condition to meet, as was said—in the home-made, and in many cases, the factory-made set.

Fig. 2—Method of Obtaining Necessary Neutralizing Current.

The remedy is again as before. Have a small neutralizing inductance and a large neutralizing capacity, using the midge variable condenser. Tap off the secondary of the neutrodyne L_1 to include the number of turns to the filament equal to about one-half of L, the primary. Then the neutralizing condenser is safely the usual midge, but not very satisfactorily the so-called neutrodon of the sliding tube type.

To Obliterate the Troubles.

Fig. 3 illustrates the simply obvious scheme devised by Glenn Browning of Browning-Drake fame, which obviates the troubles we have just mentioned. The little disk of metal coming near to the inductance coil makes of itself and the coil a neutralizing capacity and tap in a unique fashion. Of course, if it is not placed properly in relation to the voltage, at which it meets the secondary, it is possible to overneutralize and thus fail.

Sets employing a neutralized stage of radio frequency—regenerative detector and whatever necessary audio—are easy to neutralize by means of a simple procedure. Starting off with the neutralizing capacity at its maximum, adjust the tickler for oscillation with the two-tuned circuits in tune. It probably will be found that the tickler rotates through a greater arc than the proper 90 degrees for the steady oscillating state. This signifies that the first tube is oscillating as well, and it should not. Make a slight adjustment of the neutralizing condenser. See if the result is a necessary greater increase of the tickler. Continue this until, not having changed the tuning, the adjustment of the tickler arrives at its greatest proportion of nonoscillating to oscillating portion of the arc of its swing. In other words, until it is necessary to give the greatest amount of tickler to start oscillation. When this condition has been reached the first tube is probably not oscillating and the behavior of oscillation and regeneration will be lots less erratic and more regular. This is a method of neutralizing that may be done any time of day or night, independent of both a strong signal or a buzzer and battery.

Aerials Safely Placed
Will Save Much Trouble

Amateur electricians hanging aerials for radio sets often make some gross error or oversight with the result that they put themselves and their property in grave danger. In the past few months several serious accidents have occurred in different parts of New England and with the object of overcoming this and at the same time protecting their own installation, the principal electric light company of Worcester, Mass., has issued a notice that its officials will inspect all such wires free of charge, upon request of the owner. The radio owners of that city were quick to avail themselves of the opportunity and a number of antennae were found that were suspended over or near the heavily charged electric wires of the company, and in the event of falling would have been the cause of death or of serious injury and damage to the property.

MISCELLANEOUS DISHES

It is possible to have wholesome food and attractive desserts made with but little time. As expense must enter into the account of 95 per cent of the American housewives' plans, it is not easy to have things good, inexpensive, easy to prepare, together with variety; but hard things are what the average housewife knows how to conquer, so she just puts a little more thought and effort into her meal planning.

Fifteen Minute Pudding.—This pudding meets all the qualifications, of attractiveness, wholesomeness, easy to prepare and not too expensive: Sift one cupful of flour with one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of baking powder, then add one-half cupful of milk, mixing well. Into buttered cups drop a spoonful of the batter and over it add a tablespoonful of canned cherries—juice and all—cover with another spoonful of batter and when three or four cups are partly filled, put to cook in a pan of boiling water, having the water deep enough not to boil out, but not deep enough to boil over the cups. This makes four good-sized puddings or five or six smaller ones. Steam well covered 15 minutes and serve with cream and sugar.

With the variety of prepared gelatins on the market a dessert which may be quickly prepared and then set into the ice box is ready for the night dinner, or for the next day's luncheon. It must stand long enough to become well chilled to be satisfactory. To this jelly any kind of fresh or canned fruit may be added or served with it. With different flavors combined and molded into various forms, it will seem each time like a new dessert.

A small amount of preserves stirred into cake crumbs, flavored with two or three drops of rose extract, garnished with whipped cream, makes a quick, economical and at the same time tasty dessert.

Chocolate Sauce.—Cook the following ingredients in a double boiler: One cupful of milk, two egg yolks, one-fourth cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of butter, two ounces of chocolate or one-quarter cupful of cocoa. Cook until the mixture coats the spoon. Serve hot on ice cream.

Calf's Brains Escalloped.—Parboil the brains, sprinkle with salt and pepper and add a little lemon juice. Cut into inch pieces. Arrange in layers in a buttered baking dish, alternating with tomato sauce. Cover with buttered crumbs and serve with chopped pickle.

Seasonable Foods.

This is the time of year when we enjoy all kinds of hot griddle cakes for breakfast. Here is one worth adding to one's cook book:

Rich Waffles.—Sift one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add slowly one cupful of sour milk and one-fourth cupful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of sugar and the yolks of three eggs beaten light. Add the stiffly beaten whites and fold in lightly. Cook on a hot waffle iron and serve with butter and maple syrup.

Carrot Pie.—For a pie that is different you will like this: Cook five carrots until tender, mash and measure, using a cupful of the mashed carrot to a cupful of milk, one egg and a little salt, sugar to taste and spices to flavor. Bake in an open crust as pumpkin pie.

Scrapie.—Take corn meal mush after being well cooked and hot, stir in chopped cold meat, a little onion if liked and plenty of seasoning. Pour into a small bread loaf pan to mold. When cold cut into slices and fry.

Pickled Fish.—Clean fresh fish and lay in salt overnight. In the morning drop them into a pickle made with one cupful of vinegar, one-fourth cupful of water, one tablespoonful of sugar, sliced onion and spices. Let come to the boiling point, add a few fish at a time—until well scalded—can and seal in mason jars. These will be good eating any time of year.

Fluffy Meringue.—Break egg whites into a bowl and set on ice, adding a few grains of salt. When well chilled beat the eggs, adding two tablespoonfuls of sugar for each egg. Return to the ice to chill again, then place on the warm pie or pudding and brown in a quick oven.

A combination of two desserts may be served which is both pleasing to the eye and taste. Prepare a small amount of chocolate blancmange, just ordinary cornstarch pudding with a spoonful of cocoa or grated chocolate added. Serve a spoonful of the pudding with a small mold of lemon gelatin. The combination is especially tasty.

Many Say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Keep Them Fit to Work

8,549,511 women would be a vast army. According to the 1920 Census of Manufactures, that is the number of women and girls employed in all trades in the United States.

Napoleon said, "An army travels on its stomach." This army of women travels on its general health. Every working girl knows that time lost through illness seldom is paid for and seldom can be made up. Employers demand regularity. If she wants to keep her job or hopes for a better one, she must guard her health.

Let Tanlac restore your health

If your body is all fagged-out and run down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have been benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that effect that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished weight.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into the nearest drug store and get a bottle of this world-famed tonic. That's the first important step back to health and vigor. Every day's delay means unnecessary suffering, for Tanlac starts to clean out and tone up the system right away. And

Golf Played in Ireland Three Centuries Ago

Golf was played in Ireland 300 years ago, according to a discovery made by Joseph R. Fisher, member of the boundary commission. He has unearthed records which show that Lord Montgomery, or plain Mr. Haigh as he was then, was granted land by King James near where the famous Newcastle links now are.

Montgomery gave a site for a school on this land and records show that he allotted sufficient space for schools to "play at golf."

The school and links disappeared during the troubled years of the Civil war and rebellion, in the latter half of the Seventeenth century.

Youngest Managers Seen in Big Baseball Leagues

Stanley Harris is the youngest manager in baseball. He already has won two pennants for the Washington club although he is not yet thirty.

Adrian C. Anson and Frank (Huck) Chance, former managers of the Chicago club of the National league, won three pennants each for their club before they reached thirty years.

Charlie Comiskey of the St. Louis club of the '80s and Fred Clark of the Pittsburgh club led their respective teams to pennants before they had reached their thirtieth year.

In fact, Chance was the youngest manager to lead a big league team to a championship. Born in 1879, he won his first pennant in 1905, then followed with successive pennants in 1907 and 1908.

HUDDLE SYSTEM IS EASY TO USE

Coach Got Novel Idea From Sports Scribe.

A sports reporter from a Chicago newspaper was responsible for the introduction of the so-called huddle system in basket ball being used successfully by Coach Maury Kent at Northwestern university this season.

The system, which has attracted considerable attention among authorities of the game and which is quite likely to be adopted widely by coaches, was brought into existence by a reporter who saw the novelty of such a method.

Coach Kent had been using the huddle for the past several years in practice games between the first and second teams where both sides used the same plays and were familiar with the hand signals.

The sports scribe watched the Purple cagers in practice one afternoon just before the opening of the present season and saw the huddle being used by the opposing fives. He asked the purple mentor whether he planned to use the system in the regular games. "Sure! Why not?" said Kent, who later declared that he hadn't given the idea any thought, but when it was suggested by the reporter he saw no reason why it wouldn't work.

The system calls for no radical departure in the playing of the game.
Yet it gives the team employing it a simple method of calling its plays, both on the offense and defense. During its brief existence at Northwestern the huddle has proved its value and will be continued, according to Coach Kent, who originated it.

"We find that the huddle has come up to expectations," declared Coach Kent. "It is easy to use and is more accurate than the former method of hand signaling. Contrary to popular belief it functions even when the opposing team gets the tip-off. It enables a team to vary its defense more rapidly and more surely."

Not Yet a Regular

Rube Bressler has been playing with the Cincinnati Reds for some years, but so far has been unable to annex a regular place, but his batting and his versatile defense and his aggressive spirit won for him a place on the honor list of valuable players in the National league.

Wally Pipp Denies He's Out of Baseball Sport

Wally Pipp, for 11 years first baseman of the New York Yankees and now guardian of the same position for the Cincinnati Reds, disagrees with the critics who have counted him out as a big-league ball player.

"I expect to play regularly for four or five years," says Wally. "If I didn't think I was good for several more years I would not report to the Reds.
I have no idea of playing minor-league ball, and I have no intention of hanging around a big-league bench waiting for a chance to go up and pinch hit for somebody else."

Sport Notes

There are nearly 1,000 former collegiates now playing professional foot-

Your New Home

should be made artistic, sanitary and livable.

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

The walls of the old home, whether mansion or cottage, can be made just as attractive, just as sanitary, through the intelligent use of

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

It is absolutely necessary if you expect Alabastine results that you ask for and secure Alabastine.

Avoid kalsomines under various names and insist on the package with the cross and circle printed in red. That is the only way to be sure you are getting the genuine Alabastine.

Alabastine is easy to mix and apply, lasting in its results, and absolutely sanitary.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

Better write us for hand-made color designs and special suggestions. Give us your decorative problems and let us help you work them out.

"You allowed constipation to become chronic—until finally it resulted in organic disease.

"People don't realize how insidious constipation is. Its first effects are hardly more than annoyances—headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and the like. But in time, as the body is subjected to continued intestinal poisoning, it may lead to high blood pressure, rheumatism, diabetes or even Bright's disease.

"Stop constipation if you wish to live long. Take a little Nujol every day—that will keep you regular."

Nujol relieves constipation in Nature's way

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody.
It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is safe, gentle and natural in its action.
Nujol makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines.
It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.
Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness, it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.
Ask your druggist for Nujol today and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.
